A Certain World: A Commonplace Book

W.H. Auden

a undeniable international

This "commonplace book," as such collections of favorite quotations and private reviews are called, is prepared alphabetically by way of categories, a few really quirky, devised by means of Auden. "Dogs" and "Eating" get many pages, as does "Lead Mine, stopover at To A." while "Bores" get only a part web page but that contains "What is extra spell binding than the voices of youth for those who cannot listen what they say?" (credited to one L. P. Smith. more than enough for uncommitted browsing.
