James Lee Burke

'A highly-spiced gumbo of vice, violence, voodoo' Observer A regimen task transporting death-row prisoners to their executions is going fatally wrong, leaving Dave Robicheaux brutally wounded and his associate dead. enthusiastic about revenge, Dave is persuaded through the DEA to move undercover into the torrid sleepy depths of latest Orleans, a unstable international of Mafia drug-running and Cajun voodoo magic. He turns into irrevocably tangled up within the nightmarish internet surrounding Mafia don Tony Cardo and needs to positioned himself opposed to his personal worst fears so as to survive.

C'est traînant ce bouquin. Comme l'accent. I. a. narrateur a une voix douce et éraillée et il se sert de sa breathing dans sa narration, tantôt lente et profonde, tantôt haletante. On l'imagine dans los angeles moiteur, une clope au bec, son chapeau un peu en arrière, effluves de tabac et de bourbon, barbe de trois jours. On est en Louisiane. Dépaysement total. Attention, il y a de l'action! Et des moments intéressants, des turning points. Mais malgré les explosions, tueurs à gage psychopathes, buyers de drogue, vétérans du Vietnam, bordel, prostituées, mafiosi-sa, flics sous couverture, hundreds of thousands de dollar, vengeances, menaces de mort, gardes du corps et autres éléments de base à tout bon movie policier qui se respecte, l'impression générale c'est l'indolence. Jamais un mot plus haut que l'autre. Même au pic de l'action, pas de cri, pas de cavalcade. Risque de mort imminente et apéro au bistrot du coin ont I. a. même intensité, toujours avec l'accent traînant du sud. J'ai aimé l'ambiance de ce roman. Les descriptions sont précises et touchent les five cinq sens. los angeles A Morning for Flamingos (Dave Robicheaux #4) chaleur, le bruit des noix de pécan qui tombent dans le jardin, les oiseaux qui crient dans le marais, le reflet de I. a. lune sur l'eau, les odeurs tantôt agréables tantôt nauséabondes, les champs de canne... Les descriptions ne sont jamais longues, jamais lassantes et sonnent toujours au plus juste. cognizance SPOILER!!! Avant même que ce soit explicite dans l'histoire, on despatched le revirement de Dave Robicheaux vs. Tony Cardeaux. Dave est un homme foncièrement juste, empathique et petit à petit, il se prend d'amitié pour cette grosse légume de I. a. drogue (en anglais ils disent les "grease balls", les boules de graisse) qui est aussi un papa attentionné envers son petit garçon handicapé, un héros de guerre traumatisé et un drogué qui cherche à décrocher. Un peu taré aussi sur les bords quand même. Et puis Dave Robicheaux. Ah! Avec sa grosse moustache, sa cinquantaine d'année, son passé d'alcoolique, c'est l'anti-héros parfait. Je l'adore. Rien que son nom! Dave Robicheaux. Allez-y, dites le tout haut. Le prénom à l'américaine et le nom à los angeles normande. Dans mon esprit, A Morning for Flamingos (Dave Robicheaux #4) grâce à l'excellent movie de Tavernier "Dans los A Morning for Flamingos (Dave Robicheaux #4) angeles Brume Electrique", Dave Robicheaux = Tommy Lee Jones. Il y aussi un autre personnage avec un nom incroyable: Gros Mama Goula, qui se prononce comme c'est écrit sauf pour Gros, on dit grosse. Donc Grosse Mama Goula. Dis par mon pote là haut, ça vaut le détour. J'aime aussi sa façon de dire "little guy", c'est comme ça que Dave appelle sa fille adoptive. En me baladant sur internet, je suis tombée sur cet article (très long!): <http://www.louisianafolklife.org/LT/A...> qui décortique les croyances populaires présentes dans les romans de James Lee Burke, y compris dans "A Morning For Flamingos". Il semblerait à l. a. lumière de cet article, très bien documenté, que JLB ait mélangé les croyances family members aux "traiteurs", des rebouteux cajuns, avec los angeles pratique du Vaudou, pour donner naissance au personnage de Gros Mama Goula. Le aspect valable est que dans l. a. croyance populaire cajun, le traiteur est fondamentalement bon et ne jette pas de kind ni ne cherche à nuire, comme ce peut être le cas dans l. a. faith Vaudou. Cela crée un personnage plus haut en couleur, plus exotique pour des personnes comme moi, n'ayant aucune autre référence culturelle de cette région que celle de Burke. Pour les cajuns de los angeles Nouvelle Orléans ou de New Iberia par contre, Gros Mama Goula est hautement A Morning for Flamingos (Dave Robicheaux #4) improbable. Refermons cette parenthèse pour conclure que c'était bien cool, un peu lent et que je lui mets trois étoiles - en grosse partie parce que Dave Robicheaux.
