A Spiritual Life: A Jewish Feminist Journey

Merle Feld

a distinct memoir that interweaves poetry, narrative, meditation, and social history, a religious existence explores the advanced features of a Jewish woman's non secular coming-of-age, shooting the emotional and non secular fact of latest Jews in addition to non secular seekers of all types. From the reviews of early childhood, to the religious awakening of an earthly adolescent encountering Jewish tradition, to the alternately humorous and searing stories of new-found independence, early married life, younger motherhood, and midlife, Feld reviews with striking honesty and readability at the many phases of religious and creative exploration and growth. Overarching a lot of these bills is the image of the way the cycle of the Jewish calendar yr involves offer an ever-renewing resource of sustenance for the author's deepening non secular expression.
