A Symposium of Praise: Horace Returns to Lyric in Odes IV

Timothy Johnson

Ten years after publishing his first selection of lyric poetry, Odes I-III, Horace (65 B.C.-8 B.C.) lower back to lyric and A Symposium of Praise: Horace Returns to Lyric in Odes IV released one other publication of fifteen odes, Odes IV. those later lyrics, which compliment Augustus, the imperial family, and different political insiders, have usually been taken care of extra as propaganda than art. yet in A Symposium of Praise, Timothy Johnson examines the richly textured ambiguities of Odes IV that have interaction the viewers within the communal or "symptotic" formula of Horace's praise. Surpassing propaganda, Odes IV displays the finely nuanced and innovative poetry of Callimachus instead of the traditions of Aristotelian and Ciceronian rhetoric, which recommend that compliment may still current often admitted virtues and vices. during this way, Johnson demonstrates that Horace's program of competing views establishes him as Pindar's rival. Johnson exhibits the Horatian panegyrist is greater than a based poet representing in basic terms the needs of his patrons. The poet forges the panegyric agenda, commencing the nature of the compliment (its mode, lyric, and content material either optimistic and negative), and calls jointly a group to affix within the construction and model of Roman identities and civic ideologies. With this A Symposium of Praise: Horace Returns to Lyric in Odes IV insightful reading, A Symposium of compliment can be of curiosity to historians of the Augustan interval and its literature, and to students attracted to A Symposium of Praise: Horace Returns to Lyric in Odes IV the dynamics among own expression and political power.
