Invisible Walls: Why We Ignore the Damage We Inflict on the Planet . . . and Ourselves

Peter Seidel

Our wishes for food, housing, medicine, transportation, luxuries, and all of the different advantages of industrialization have led to the exploitation of our normal surroundings. We all know our activities impact the actual international we rely on, so why needs to we be confronted with catastrophic problems--overpopulation, the lack of bio-diversity, international warming, and Invisible Walls: Why We Ignore the Damage We Inflict on the Planet . . . and Ourselves the like--before we act to guard the planet's ecosystem--and then frequently inadequately? With astute research Peter Seidel explores the advanced convergence of psychological, social, economic, and political components that maintain us from appearing in our personal self-interest. An environmental and human relatives visionary, Seidel proposes adoption of a brand new "world model," a "universal ethic," and long term societal goals. Educators and newshounds needs to supply us a greater realizing of ourselves-creatures developed to operate in a hunter-gatherer society, now not within the complex, damaging international we now have created. We needs to learn how to use our minds to regulate our primitive drives instead of to meet them.
