The book cover features a textured, abstract background in shades of olive green and yellow. A dark blue horizontal band is positioned in the upper third of the cover. Below this band, the author's name 'JAMES KELMAN' is printed in large, bold, white capital letters. Underneath the author's name, the editor's name 'Simon Kövesi' is written in a smaller, white font. The lower two-thirds of the cover are dominated by a dark, shadowed area that appears to be a close-up of a textured surface, possibly a piece of fabric or paper, with a small, dark, irregular object resting on it.

It argues that whereas Kelman bargains a coherent and constant imaginative and prescient of the world, each one novel might be learn as a different literary reaction to specific points of latest working-class language and culture. This examine resists the typical condemnations of Kelman as a depressing realist and produces proof that he's conscious about an unorthodox, politicized literary culture that transgresses definitions of what literature can or may still do. This learn is boldly self-critical and questions the validity and values of its personal methods. Kelman is proven to be deftly humorous, assiduously ethical, philosophically alert, and politically necessary.
