

More Napalm and Silly Putty by George Carlin

George Carlin

he is back! In a voice extra cantankerous and comically stinky than ever, George Carlin spouts off on every little thing from British royalty ("A Day within the lifetime of Henry VIII") to vehicle racing ("Sports can be Fixed") to American politics ("Don't Blame the Leaders"). along with his manic brain and motor mouth in excessive gear, he rants opposed to someone who tells him to "have a pleasant day" and skewers the euphemism epidemic ("To be honest, a few of this language makes me are looking to vomit. Well, maybe 'vomit' is just too powerful a word. It makes me are looking to have interaction in a involuntary own protein spill"). while Carlin's in a extra reflective mood, he reveals, "I could not devote suicide if my lifestyles trusted it," and ponders the quite massive questions, like "Is a vegetarian accredited to consume animal crackers?" and "Griddle cakes, pancakes, hotcakes, flapjacks: why are there 4 names for grilled batter and just one notice for love? "What his candid tackle "life's little moments" lacks More Napalm and Silly Putty in political correctness, it greater than makes up for in gut-busting laughs. he is the man who dares say what the remainder of us hesitate even to think. And he does so in ways in which are frequently raunchy and consistently riotous.
