Notches (Gabriel Du Pre #4) by Peter Bowen

Peter Bowen

The grotesque corpse of a tender girl is located beside an extended Montana road known as the Hi-Line. Her jaw and the teeth are missing, and he or she is most unlikely to identify. Packed with anger and with Notches (Gabriel Du Pre #4) no clue, Du Pre starts off to seek the geographical region for her murderer. As extra dismembered corpses - all younger ladies - are discovered, the small ranching group is going into shock. Madeline, Du Pre's fierce and clever lover, makes him swear that he'll do justice for the victims, no matter what it takes. While Madeline's personal daughter is going missing, Du Pre turns into determined for a clue. He can't decipher the mysterious messages the Hi-Line Killer locations in his homicide scenes. Considering like a hunter, Du Pre needs to think how a serial killer's brain works - and discover the troubling facts that there can be of them.

PROTAGONIST: Gabriel du Pre
SETTING: Montana
SERIES: #4 Notches (Gabriel Du Pre #4) of 13
RATING: 3.25
WHY: a lot to my surprise, I discovered that I had neglected a few books during this series, that's a favourite of mine. It is all concerning the characters. The plot did not relatively delay all that well. Not less than 2 males were killing women for years and years. No longer completely credible how they have been uncovered. Love spending time with du Pre and the assisting cast, yet this one used to be vaguely disappointing, quite often as the secondary characters that I like had little or no position during this book.
