Perjalanan Dua Purnama by Sharon Creech

Sharon Creech

Kami berjalan menuju beranda dan di sana, di tangga paling atas, tergeletak sebuah amplop putih, tanpa tulisan Perjalanan Dua Purnama apa pun. Phoebe memungut dan membukanya. Di dalamnya ada sehelai kertas biru yang bertuliskan: Jangan menilai seseorang sebelum Perjalanan Dua Purnama kamu berjalan selama dua purnama mengenakan moccasins-nya. "Aneh sekali," kata Phoebe. Surat rahasia ini barulah salah satu kejadian aneh yang dialami Salamanca Tree Hiddle dan Phoebe Winterbottom setelah ibu Phoebe menghilang. Belum lagi munculnya orang gila yang berkeliaran di sekitar rumah Phoebe dan para tetangga pembunuh yang mengubur korbannya di halaman belakang. Benarkah ibu Phoebe menghilang karena dibunuh para tetangganya? Siapa sebenarnya orang gila itu? Apakah Salamanca akan berhasil mengajak ibunya kembali ke Ohio

That evening I saved puzzling over Pandora's box. I questioned why an individual may positioned a very good factor comparable to wish in a field with affliction and kidnapping and murder. It was once lucky that it used to be there, though. If not, humans could have the birds of unhappiness nesting of their hair all of the time, as a result of nuclear wars and the greenhouse impact and bombs and stabbings and lunatics. There should have been one other field with all of the good stuff in it, like sunshine and love and bushes and all that. Who had the nice fortune to open that one, and used to be there one undesirable factor down there within the backside of the nice box? might be it was once Worry. even if every little thing turns out high-quality and good, I fear that Perjalanan Dua Purnama whatever will get it wrong and alter everything. This quote is from bankruptcy 27, whilst Sal displays at the fantasy of Pandora, which Phoebe awarded that day in class. Creech characterizes herself as owning an indomitable experience of hope, religion within the energy of the human spirit, and openness to inspiration. Perjalanan Dua Purnama In instructor Librarian, she explains that she by no means understands the Perjalanan Dua Purnama course a e-book will take whilst she begins writing. Creech describes writing as a procedure principally past her regulate and completely consuming: she crafts the characters' voices, yet these "voices" then govern the unfolding of the book. those voices narrate the tale to Creech, who, while composing a brand new book, is probably going to develop into so absorbed within the tales happening in her head that she "put(s) the phone handset within the refrigerator, or (her) keys within the microwave." Writing is not, however, a simple or glib process. as soon as entire with the draft of stroll Moons, for example, she revised it 11 times. Her huge revision approach frequently lasts one to 3 years. Creech cites the telephone name from the Newbery Medal Committee in 1995 as a huge turning aspect in her life. She describes dwelling for days later on "on pins and needles," afraid the committee could name again and inform her they'd made a bad mistake. Indeed, the Newbery Medal has nice strength to remodel an author's existence because it promises the writer to whom it really is presented not just fame, yet revenues and an extended print lifestyles for the booklet in question, much more so than the Pulitzer. However, Creech's award generated controversy. She used to be an "unknown" within the United States, and a few accused the committee of bestowing the award on stroll Moons because its protagonist is a component local American girl. Critics brush off the booklet for its not going plot twists, it's too-easy message of desire and endurance, and its heavy-handed symbolism. on the related time, Creech stands via her proclivity towards tales of desire and humor, arguing easily that she is suited for telling such stories, whereas others are greater suited for writing extra life like and severe stories. She explains that during writing such stories, she creates and is ready to spend time in appealing areas with type and fascinating people. Creech's books supply her and her readers the opportunity to stay in an international of desire and beauty. Salamanca Tree Hiddle is taking a visit together with her grandparents from Euclid, Ohio to Lewiston, Idaho, to go to her mother's ultimate resting place. alongside the way, Salamanca, or Sal, tells her grandparents the tale of her most sensible friend, Phoebe iciness bottom, whose mother, like Sal's, unexpectedly makes a decision to go away home. Sal meets Phoebe while Sal and her father depart their farm in Bybanks, Kentucky, to Euclid, Ohio, the place Margaret Cadaver, whom Sal's father befriended after her mother's death, lives. Phoebe is a high-strung, prim, and wildly resourceful girl. She feels convinced that a few sinister connection exists among the morbidly-named Mrs. Cadaver, who's her next-door neighbor, the mysterious notes that maintain showing on her family's doorstep, and the unusual boy, whom Phoebe dubs the lunatic, who appears to be like on the condominium one day. Sal steadily turns into stuck up in her friend's melodrama and unearths herself engaged in a heady flirtation with a boy from school, Ben. Walk Moons is actually a suite of person tales informed from a couple of assorted views woven right into a coherent narrative: we learn not just Sal and Phoebe's stories, yet Greek myths, local American myths, previous relatives Perjalanan Dua Purnama stories, and snippets from students' journals. each one tale suits into the most narratives and in addition resonates and amplifies the which means and substance of different stories. on the comparable time, each one tale performs a special function within the narrative, demonstrating the ability tales need to have an effect on human adventure and consciousness. Phoebe makes use of her tale concerning the lunatic to chase away other, extra threatening, motives of Mrs. Winterbottom's disappearance. Sal makes use of Phoebe's tale so that it will relive her personal Perjalanan Dua Purnama tale and are available to a greater knowing of it. Gram and Gramp's tales offer Sal with a feeling of her family background and with a version for her personal lifestyles and loves. The myths interspersed in the course of the novel provide either the characters and Perjalanan Dua Purnama the readers a method of figuring out the origins, state, and implications of the human condition. Sal tells her personal tale as a method of reflecting on it and coming to simply accept it. Sal accommodates tales of the previous into the current second of her narrative, occasionally preventing so as to add a narrative as a way of explanation, or really embedding them into the narrative as a magazine access or a reminiscence brought on throughout the process the narrative. She tells the tale of her mother, which Perjalanan Dua Purnama precedes either the first (the journey around the States) and secondary (the tale of Phoebe) narratives of the novel, via those spontaneous or embedded flashes of memory. For example, she writes in her magazine approximately her mother's tree kissing, a tree within the car parking zone in South Dakota reminds her of the making a song tree in her backyard, and Phoebe's relatives triggers her reminiscence of the morning her father left plants at the desk for Sal and her mother. Sal's narration of her stories demonstrates that the prior won't remain put. The narration bubbles up into the current and drives occasions and emotions. In fact, as Sal's lengthy trip around the kingdom shows, the current is frequently not anything greater than try and relive and comprehend the past. While the radical facilities on a trip of loss and acceptance, it grounds this trip in a chain of lovely usual gadgets and places. Sal's realizing of her earlier is inextricably guaranteed to trees, fields, wildberries, and lakes, and through her journey, she passes by means of Lake Michigan, the Wisconsin Dells, Pipestone nationwide Monument, the Missouri River, the Badlands, the Black Hills, outdated Faithful, and the mountains of Montana and Idaho. either Sal and her grandparents event moments of companionship, nice emotion, or even rapture within the face of those common phenomena. Sal and all her relations truly harbor a deep admire and appreciation for nature and are aware of it as one of many many worthwhile benefits that life, usually merciless and unpredictable, bestows upon us. The messages, postcards, and magazine entries embedded within the textual content of Walk Moons all exhibit the uncertainty and trouble occupied with studying the phrases of others. Phoebe twists the benign and comical messages left on her doorstep into sequence of threats or mysterious clues hinting at Mrs. Winterbottom's whereabouts. Mr. Birkway, who argues together with his scholars that ambiguity is without doubt one of the maximum beauties of written texts, sees the journals they've got written as "brilliant" examples of conflicting emotions, while his scholars see them as embarrassing revelations in their such a lot deepest thoughts. Sal struggles to interpret the conflicting message of the postcards her mom sends her. each one postcard expresses love for Sal, and but reminds Sal that her mom had to go away her to take a long, soul-searching trip. in the course of the novel, Sal turns into progressively more expert at realizing and accepting those ambiguities. Sal notices 3 making a song timber in the course of the novel, every one of which performs a task within the development of her narrative. the 1st is the tree on her farm in Kentucky, a tree that contained a gorgeous songbird in its optimum branches and looked as if it would sing on its own. the second one is the tree outdoor the health facility in South Dakota, which triggers her reminiscence of home. The 3rd making a song tree is found close to her mother's grave in Lewiston, Idaho. the 3 timber either characterize and convey Sal's robust emotional reactions to the usual world, but in addition reply to her altering emotions: the tree at the farm didn't join up the day she and her father figured out that her mom had died. Like blackberries, the making a song bushes signify the spontaneous and unasked for generosity of the usual world, yet in addition they signify Sal, whose center identify is "Tree." The bushes reply to loss and grief—they don't continually sing—but they keep their good looks and their skill to specific and set off joy. Both Sal's mom and Mrs. Winterbottom minimize their hair sooner than or in the course of their journey. Sal's mother, to her husband's chagrin, cuts her lengthy black hair within the kitchen the week earlier than she leaves, and Mrs. Winterbottom cuts hers whereas she is gone, returning domestic with a trendy new haircut. either girls lower their hair as a part of their try to rework themselves. they're taking away their former selves, and maybe removing part of themselves that marks their gender, an element frequently linked to female beauty. To Sal, her mother's hair symbolizes whatever extra complicated. rigorously stored and hidden underneath her floorboards in Bybanks, Kentucky, her mother's hair represents the happiness her mom as soon as knew and lost. Her hair, stored yet deeply hidden, reminds Sal of the idealized mom she is starting to become aware of by no means existed. Creech empathy's variety as a resource of understanding, and enjoying the past's intrusion plot into the current smoothly.
