Technical Services: Today and Tomorrow

Michael E. Gorman

concentrating on some of the most primary parts of librarianship, Gorman and a bunch of individual participants research the present kingdom of the sphere of technical providers and provide their perspectives on its future. The publication is split into 4 sections: acquisitions, bibliographic control, automation, and administration. Inside those sections person chapters tackle particular elements of the sector (e.g., serials acquisitions, descriptive cataloging, stream services). The textual content has been completely updated, with a few chapters totally rewritten and others replaced. Really expert chapters on booklet amassing plans, preservation, and Slavic technical providers were dropped from this version and a bankruptcy on international standardization has been added. Delivering a stimulating variety of voices and perspectives, this landmark paintings is a big contribution to the world of technical prone within the culture of Tauber's Technical companies in Libraries (Columbia collage Press, 1954). Invaluable as supplementary
