Fiction. Oddly, the darkish superstar of this darkly comedian novel set within the past due 1800s is not the grasp tanner, however the tanner's wife, Dolly, a sensuous and grounded girl who sees the West for what it is: a land of violence, yes; but additionally a land of clean deserts signifying opportunity. So whereas her husband will get his head trapped inside of a lifeless buffalo's skull, Dolly maneuvers via a monomaniacal Slavic emigre performing as city sheriff, a photographer named Swing T whose "spiritual journey" mask murderous sadism, a one-eyed poetic smith, and a star-gazing gambler who places out the smith's eye with a gap card in self-defense. With colourful characters and a compelling and striking plot, Bamberger's first novel definitely echoes our current age up to it does our westward expansion.
