White Skins/Black Masks: Representation and Colonialism

Gail White Skins/Black Masks: Representation and Colonialism Ching-Liang Low

during this intriguing re-reading of the vintage paintings of Haggard and Kipling, Gail White Skins/Black Masks: Representation and Colonialism Ching-Liang Low examines the representational dynamics of colonizer as opposed to colonized. Exploring the interface among the local 'other' as a mirrored image and as some degree of address, the writer asserts that this 'other' is a reflect reflecting clone of the colonizer - a 'cultural cross-dressing'. making use of psychoanalysis, anthropology and postcolonial theory, Low analyzes the best way myth and fabulation are stuck up in networks of hope and power. White Skins/Black mask is an engaging access into the present debate of post-colonial theory.
